

QuickGuide to Brexit rules

If you are an exporter or importer of goods to/from the European Union (EU) this QuickGuide helps you navigating within the new rules and conditions related to the Brexit transition.

Brexit will affect transport operations considerably. At Blue Water, we are well-prepared for the transition. We have in-house competences and local knowledge in both the United Kingdom, Ireland and Scandinavia, which means that we can handle your transport through Brexit in the most expedient manner.

Are you an exporter?

First of all, you must be registered and have an EORI number. Your invoices must be in English and contain the following:

- » Name and address of the EU buyer
- » Delivery address if it differs from the buyer's
- » Buyer's EORI and VAT number. You can check whether the EORI number is valid via this [\[LINK\]](#)
- » Product description and HS Code of each product
- » Gross and net weight
- » Delivery terms according to Incoterms. As exporter we do not recommend that you use DDP, as this delivery term means that you are liable for customs and VAT in the recipient country
- » For Incoterms entailing that the buyer is responsible for the payment of customs duty, the name and address of the buyer's customs agent must be stated in the invoice

Further, an export statement must be prepared from the UK. We can take care of that for you.

Are you an importer?

First of all, you must be registered and have an EORI number. In addition, you must make sure that:

- » The invoice from your supplier contains your address information
- » The invoice contains product description and HS Code of each product
- » Delivery terms according to Incoterms are stated in the invoice

You have decided how any Duty or VAT will be paid – do you have a deferment account?

When deliveries arrive in the UK, customs clearance must be conducted. We would be happy to do that for you.

We are following the development closely, and if changes occur in connection to the above guidelines, we will keep you informed.

To ensure that customs and exports are done correctly, we kindly ask you to fill in the Customs authority for us to act on your behalf. [\[DOWNLOAD PDF\]](#)

Do you have questions to the Brexit rules?

Our competent Brexit specialists are ready to help you.

Please contact us on dk_road_brexit@bws.dk or

Blue Water Manchester, Richard Dunning tel: +44 16187 62453.

